MRS. WHITNEY ABSENT

Great Race-Boys Believe Me Springs Surprise.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 31 .- A distinctly eminine touch was added to the brilfeature of Pimilco's autumnal Payne Whitney's silks, ac-was overturned to-day to the delight of the holiday size crowd which attended. All inclosures were crowded nfines of the club inclosure.

Munly was a real test at two and miles, and it proved that Damask, five-year-old gelding, son of All Golddine II., bred by Harry Payne Whitney, had finally found his proper ocation by joining the cross-country lepartment. It was Damask's second department. It was Damask's second effort over the obstacles. Under Bartett Haynes's intelligent piloting he raced along in third place behind a pace provided by Decisive and Lieutenant Seas. Cheyenne, on the Canadian horse, appeared anxious, and was clearly outridden by Haynes in the final drive after they had crossed the last hedge almost together.

The hedge fronting the clubhouse, which has always proved a pitfall, was the scene of the four accidents which marked the running. On the first circuit Plumect and Courteous, the latter the favorite for the race, came to grief, while on the second Musty and Earlocker came a cropper.

mangha, a stablemate of the wir ner, plodded along among the trailers, throughout and finished fifth behind sea Serpent, the lone J. E. Widener candidate, who found the route too far and retired after two miles. Pierce, who fell from Earlocker, sustained a slight concussion, while Kleeger's tumble from Courteous netted him a fractured collabore.

The Maryland Jockey Club officials, evidently pleased that Mrs. Whitney's name had finally become inscribed on the famous "Manly Memorial cup. searched the grounds for the popular sportswoman. only to discover her absent. Then Vincent Fowers, her young trainer, who also rides in important faces, who had just dismounted from Saumangha, was called. He was presented with the gold trophy and a fifty dollar bill, which was the winning trainer's prize. The race was run in 4.551-5.

The Pikesville Purse, a condition affair for juveniles ever the six furlong ground, resolved itself into a Pimileo. Futurity preliminary when the nin-that answered were found to be eligible. Saturday's $40,000 mile event. The s greatest surprise resulted from unning when Boys Believe Me, ridden Ospacy's performance was distinctly below par, because he lacked speed at all stages, while Shamrock lost considerable ground on the turn and flattened out when put to the drive in the closing test.

Harry Sincisir's Knobble and Little Chief thrilled the stable's admirers when they finished first and third in the final, a six furlong event, in which the winner equaled the track record. Sande had Knobble away on his toes, with Little Chief in close attendance. Entering the stretch, Mainmast challenged Stouth on the outside, and Little Chief was forced into close quarters on the rall, but for which he might have been second, because Sande appeared content to draw the finish line with Knobble, but neglected to provide running room for Little Chief was the second of the cause Sande appeared content to draw the finish line with Knobble, but neglected to provide running room for Little Chief was the second of the cause Sande appeared content to draw the finish line with Knobble, but neglected to provide running room for Little Chief was the second of the cause Sande appeared content to draw the finish line with Knobble, but neglected to provide running room for Little Chief was the second of the cause Sande appeared content to draw the finish line with Knobble, but neglected to provide running room for Little Chief was the second of the cause second glected to provide running room for Little Chief along the rail.

Atherstone Scores.

Atherstone, a good looking Hurricana bred colt. carried the colors of John Sanford to a clever victory in the opener, a six furlong juvenile event. Atherstone, like several of the other contestants, is a Futurity candidate. It was his second appearance under silks. Butwell sent him to a quick lead and he dominated the situation throughout, winning under hand urging.

Rock Bottom, whose performance was a marked improvement over any shown at Empire City, was second. Ten Minutes lasted just long enough to save the third honors from the Quincy Stable's Petitiogser, who was among the laggards at the start and kept in close quarters for the greater part of the running. He finished resolutely and was galloped out an additional quarter in preparation for Saturday's event.

Pastoral Swain deve away at end and won enaily. Slippery Eim made a game effort. All Fair no excuse. Vendor outrun. No scratches.

The booking agent may charge a boxer if per cent. for a bout bringing $1,000 or 16,000 to $5,000, and 3 per cent. on contests bringing more than $5,000. Clubs are to pay a fixed commission on starbouts, but this has not as yet been settled. Among the rules decided on are:

"When contracts are made for boxers to perform at clubs the contract is to be made between the boxer and the club management.

"Agencies must not use the name of manager," either by correspondence or in signing agreements.

"When an agency furnishes a boxer to a club it must be understood that the connection established with the boxer terminates with this engagement.

"This Commission will insist that club managements and boxers fulfill their agreements with booking agencies.

"No money is to be paid to boxers simultaneously with the expiration of the contract. In all such cases moneys must be paid at the club the day following, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 2 P. M. unless otherwise ruled for exceptional reasons."

cided the destination of the various cups, the nerves of the gentlemen in question were showing signs of breaking sunder the strain. Never in their lives had the Westchester-Biltmore officials been subjected to such a barrage of figures. Any one could tell that the golfers thronging the links out there at group of men could possibly pile up the numerals with such utter disdain for their health. Least of all could any others dissect such a mass of minus and plus markings, that ran into the hundreds, and then turn around calmly and say who or which had won.

The bankers did all this fand then went home an islept soundly, it is believed. But in their wake they left a pile of human debris that may require weeks of quiet and rest to repair.

And the way these men of high finance, and the way these men of high finance, and the one in the deedling game, in which the score went to 17 all. pitched into each other was a sight for sore eyes. Every year out in Bergen county there is a team match in which every man in a certain position on his team plays the men who occupy the corresponding position on the ether sides. However, that is child's play compared-to the bankers' tournament. There usually are about haif a dozen teams engaged. In the event at the Westchester-Biltmore there were sevesiteen and, of course, the head bookkeepers had to wait until all the divisions and battailons had come off the links before they could go to work.

Lilimately it was announced that the

ROBERTS AND LOUISVILLE AND McMILLIN.

Not long ago a friend of ours who came from Louisville told us a story. It was a football story and we thought it highly amusing. We still think it so. Moreover, it was timely, on account of the Centre-Harvard game. It was laid so long in the past that it never occurred to us that any feeling concerning it remained. The story was simply fow Bo Mc-Millin and Red Roberts once beat a team which expected an easy game.

always furnish a little extra color. For the purposes of the story any two high schools would have done just as well. But here is the other angle: Mr. J. B. Carpenter, principal of the Louisville High School, writes us:

Mr. J. B. Carpenter, principal of the Louisville High School, writes us:

At the time this game was played the high school in Somerset did not play under the Kentucky High School Athletic Association rules. In fact, there was no such association at that time, although this high school followed the same stringent set of rules that were in vogue in such States as Illinois, Indiana and Ohlo. At that time Somerset certified that all players were bonafide students and that each of them was under 21 years of age. The team was composed of anything but "nine skinny boys and two real players." They were a team of young men, five of whom we learned later were over 21 years of age. Among those five were "Red" Roberts and "Bo" McMillin. We had more misfortune in that one football game than we usually have in three or four seasons of playing. Within the first ten minutes three of our best players were taken out, one with a broken collar bone, another with a broken arm and another with a broken leg. If this had not occurred, in spite of the fact that "Bo" McMillin and "Red" Roberts were in the lineup, our defeat would not have been a "slaughter."

And we have received other communications on the same subject. Mr.

ohn W. Head has this to say:

McMillin never played on the end of the line on defense. Roberts was never drawn back from his tackle position to carry the ball. The Somerset team did not display anything new in the way of formations. It had McMillin, five years older than the high school age limit; it had "Red" Roberts, a fourteen-year-old boy, who at that age was almost a glant in stature; it had "Red" Weaver, picked as All-America center while at Centre. These three men and eight other average high school players were responsible for this massacre you refer to. It might have been mentioned in justice to the high school team that the two "stars" of the team were forced to retire from the game, one on the first play and the other on the second play of the game, both with broken collar bones. Both guards left the contest early with such injuries that they were unable to again get into the contest. This in part was also responsible for the "massacre."

Mr. Head also says that the score was 51 to 6. We didn't know it w as bad as that. We were told it was afout 45 to 0. We are worried. Not about the Louisville High School, for it has won too many victories to be in Chicago Six Day I sensitive about one defeat, but about our story. It's all hacked to pieces and it was such a good story.

And from this latest dope it looks as if McMillin and Roberts and Weaver rether rough. Collar bones and arms and legs must have been popping like eggs. Perhaps they got a commission from some hospital.

Yale and Harvard each has a more powerful eleven than Princeton, but netiher of them can safely count on any Tiger skins for the trophy room. The members of that Princeton team are some of the greatest two handed fighting men we ever have seen in action.

Nebraska has twenty "letter" men on its squad. The line averages 197 pounds and the average for the entire team is 187 pounds, in spite of a 165 pound center, a 161 pound quarterback and a 165 pound halfback. You an figure the heft of the other eight men for yourselves

VIDAS TAKES COUNT IN SECOND ROUND

Floyd Johnson, Coast Heavy, Adds Another Victim to His

List of Knockouts.

Floyd Johnson, the coast heavyweigh who has been knocking out his oppon last night when he stopped Joe Vidas of the East, added another victim to his list last night when he stopped Joe Vidas of Newark in the second round in the Ploneer Sporting Club.

The coast boxer went after his man at the clang of the opening gong, and a little later the Jerseyite was on the floor taking the count. Vidas, however, managed to gain his feet and weathered the storm by holding and clinching Johnson until the bell ended the round. The second round had been under way just one minute and fifteen seconds when Johnson shot a right and left hander to the Newark boxer's jaw. This time Vidas was unable to get to his feet before the fatal ten had been tolled. The coatest was very disappointing.

In a ten round bout Jack Douglas of the West Side received the judges' decision over Eddie Josephs of Staten Island. The west sider floored his rival in the third round for a count of nine and had the Staten Islander in a bad way several times. Josephs outweighed Douglas by six pounds.

Silent Puryear proved himself one of the cleverest light heavyweight negro boxers seen in this section in some time by outpointing Joe De Costa in ten rounds. Puryear outboxed and outhit De Costa from the first to the final round. De Costa was badly bruised at the close. Puryear weighed 174 mounds, while his rival tipped the beam at 193 pounds.

Jack Ridge received the verdict of the Judges over Jerry Renny in a six round contest.

In the only other bout of the card Jack Tilyou knocked out Johnny Mack in the fourth round. This contest, which was only scheduled for four rounds, was stopped by the referee to save Mack further punishment.

in Chicago Six Day Race

CHICAGO Oct. 21.—Frank Corry and Lawrence Gaffney took the lead in the six day bicycle race here to-night after an hour's sprinting, deposing Alfred Goullet and Ernest Kockler, the latter of Chicago. The leaders had 118 points to their credit, while the team in second place had piled up 102.

The riders had covered 870 miles at 10 o'clock to-night.
